KANIHO HAS TURN TABLES ON DR. MADRIZ VERY WARM EVENING

The Lone Home Ruler Roasted and Read Out of the Party.

MOST RIOTOUS MEETING

Sits on Platform Constantly Protesting While Speakers Score His Actions.

Kaniho got his last night. He spent about three hours on the grid at Aala Park, and he certainly squirmed. He was broiled, roasted, and altogether burned up, in one of the most disorderly political meetings ever held here. It was disorderly largely because of Kaniho's interruptions. Twenty-five or thirty times during the evening he angrily interrupted the speakers. The chairman tried to sit on him, but the crowd tried to shout him down. Old-time politicians say that the roughest he got before the evening was over was seldom if ever been equaled in local politics, and it evidently hurt. It was all because he had deserted Nottley for McDaniel and tried to call himself still a Home Ruler.

The meeting had been called for the purpose of answering Kaniho's various attacks on Delegate Kulihi, Desha and others, and his endorsements of L. L. McDaniel for delegate to congress. By invitation, he was given a place on the platform. He chose a seat at the very front. For a time he appeared to have some of the crowd with him, but his ungovernable interruptions and evident efforts to promote disorder turned the crowd against him and towards the end of the meeting when he came to interrupt "Ollie Bill White," the crowd made him sit down.

The meeting was called to order by Senator Kalaupaka, president of the Home Rule party. Among those on the platform were Rev. S. L. Desha, Wm. White, J. P. Cooke, John Wise, Wm. Henry, Eben Low, A. S. Kaleiopa and Kaniho. At the start there appeared to be a Kaniho clique in action in the rear, and the Democratic police who were supposed to preserve order made an effort to do so as long as the disturbers shouted for Kaniho and "Nottley."

Kalaupaka made a short address. He said he didn't understand why Kaniho had gone back on Nottley. "I converted him to the Home Rule party," said Kalaupaka. "Kohala is all stirred up over his desertion, and there will be trouble for him when he goes back." Kalaupaka also paid his respects briefly to McDaniel. "When the time comes I will show you whether he loves the people or not," said the chairman. "It is all in this book," and he held a volume before the crowd.

A. S. Kaleiopa, who will probably run for the senate, was the next speaker. He discussed legislative affairs, said many side remarks from the Cannon Ball of Kohala. The leprosy laws were referred to, and Kaniho increased his interruptions, from his seat on the platform near the speaker. Kaleiopa said Kaniho had cherished ill-feelings against Prince Kulihi since the latter had given him a call-down in Kohala some years ago. Kaniho audibly refused to cease his interruptions when asked, and the crowd jeered him.

Rev. S. L. Desha began by explaining the purposes of the meeting. He said many thought it a prohibition meeting, but it was not. He didn't propose to discuss prohibition, but would leave those present to exercise their own judgment on the question. Kaniho's interruptions began almost at once. "When I attended Kaniho's meeting a week ago and he attacked me I listened in silence all through the evening," said Desha, "and I expect him to keep quiet now that I am trying to speak."

The expectation was not realized. Kaniho constantly interrupted. On two (Continued on Page Five.)

BLUEFIELDS, Nicaragua, May 22.—A message was received here yesterday from General Estrada, in command of the revolutionary army, who is at Mena, to which point he had advanced to meet the army of President Madriz.

JUDGE HART'S FUNERAL YESTERDAY

—Williams Photo. THE LATE JUDGE HART.

This print was made from the only photograph ever taken in late years of Judge Hart, and no print was ever made from the negative until yesterday.

The remains of the late Judge Hart were interred yesterday afternoon, the funeral services being held at St. Andrew's cathedral at three o'clock. The honor in which the deceased had been held in the community was shown by the number of prominent people who attended the funeral to pay their last respects to the departed.

When approached by his ministers in the matter of a law allowing the sale of intoxicants to Hawaiians, Kamehameha answered:

"I WILL NEVER SIGN THE DEATH WARRANT OF MY PEOPLE"

HATS MAY BE WORN IN MUSEUM

Rule So Much Protested Against Has Been Abolished by the Trustees.

You don't have to take your hat off now if you visit the Bishop Museum. Professor Brigham's rigid hat rule was abolished at a meeting of the trustees of the museum held last Thursday, and hereafter the visitor who wants to wander about among the mummies and other curios with his hat on is not so liable to offend as was formerly the case.

Brigham's hat rule has been the cause of much annoyance and injured feeling in times past, for the doctor insisted that every male of the human species who invaded the precincts where he holds supreme sway must take off his hat. If the man didn't take his hat off, a small boy handed him a slip of paper, advising him of the fact that gentlemen were expected to take off their hats. If the visitor remained obdurate, he got another slip of paper, and if he still defied the rule Professor Brigham descended on him in person and made him either take off the hat or get out of the building. There were exceptions, in cases where some especially obdurate visitor, equipped with an unusual amount of muscle, persisted in keeping his chaparral on, but as a rule the man with a hat was thoroughly cowed.

But now there is no more any hat rule, for the trustees have decreed it, although Doctor Brigham protested. Trustee Judd states that the trustees decided that the hat rule be abolished, though if the public fails to preserve proper decorum in the sacred precincts it may be reenacted.

HEROINE OF THE PEKING SIEGE ON THE KOREA

Miss Bessie McCoy, the heroine of the Peking siege in 1900, passed through Honolulu yesterday on the Pacific Mail steamship Korea, en route to her home in Chicago on a vacation from her missionary work in Peking, the first she has had in eight years. She first passed through here in October, 1900, just after the outbreak had been suppressed by the powers.

Miss McCoy is a relative of Mrs. Julia Afong and Mrs. A. A. Montano, a member of the Presbyterian family of Chicago, Boston and Baltimore. She was entertained during her brief visit yesterday at the Afong and Montano homes.

When the Boxer outbreak electrified the world, Miss McCoy was a missionary attached to one of the Peking missions. When it was known that the missionaries faced death if they remained at the missions, the British compound was prepared to house all the foreigners. Miss McCoy packed her heavier clothing and belongings in her trunk, one of them being a small steamer trunk. They were stored away. The missionaries were called suddenly from their homes to the British compound and all that she was able to take with her was her money, jewelry and a few things in a hand-satchel, an extra dress being carried in a bundle under her arm. The missionaries took refuge in the compound, and there prepared to resist attacks.

The Chinese laid siege to the compound and day and night bullets and shells were fired into the enclosure. The refugees were organized into a defen-

MERRY COMEDY ON GREENSWARD

Amateur Actors of Oahu College Present "As You Like It" in Pretty Manner.

Remarkably pretty in its setting and excellently acted in itself, Shakespeare's immortal "As You Like It" was played before two thousand spectators last night on the Panahou campus. If it needed any attraction outside of itself, Halley's comet's tail gave a parting wiggle and disappeared behind a palm top, just as Rosalind complained about her sad estate. Probably it is the first rendition of the delightful comedy where Halley's pipe lighter ever was an interested spectator.

Cordelia Gilman put a great deal of character into her Rosalind and Alice Bond made a sweet and charming Celia. They sustained their parts well, were fine perfect, and the little "business" of the more professional players was not entirely neglected by them.

Willard Grace appeared as the usurping duke and both he and Alexander Anderson as Duke Senior were excellent. Le Beau, acted by Reynold McGrew, was probably the best played masculine part in the piece. One of the features of the performance was the accurate detail in which the play-

DISHONOR TO THE DAY

Call Up Governor Gillett and Will Appeal to Taft if Former Cannot Move.

ATLANTIC CITY, New Jersey, May 22.—Filthy, vulgar, brutal and infamous were the adjectives used to describe the much advertised prize fight for the world's championship, to be pulled off in San Francisco on the Fourth of July, in a resolution introduced and passed yesterday at the meeting of the Presbyterian General Assembly, in annual session here. The resolution calls upon Governor Gillett of California to prevent the fight taking place anywhere in California.

In part, the resolution reads: "In the name of virtue, decency and patriotism, we demand of you that you save the State of California and the Nation's sacred birthday from the filth, vulgarity and brutality of this infamous prizefight."

An attempt will be made, if Governor Gillett either declines to act or finds himself powerless to interfere, to appeal to President Taft, asking that the federal authorities interfere to prevent the desecration of the Fourth of July.

AMERICA APPEALS TO THE HAGUE TRIBUNAL

Dispute of Long Standing Between This Country and Canada to Be Settled.

NEW YORK, May 22.—Hon. Elihu Root, former secretary of state, sailed yesterday for The Hague, where he will represent the United States in the matter of the arbitration of the north-eastern fishery question, long pending with Great Britain.

This dispute is one concerning the right of the Canadian government to refuse the sale of bait to the American fishermen on the Great Banks of Newfoundland and the refusal of the Canadians to allow the Americans to come within the three-mile limit to catch bait for themselves. The fishing banks are not within the Canadian waters, but they are too far from the home ports of the American fishermen to allow them to carry a sufficient supply of fresh bait. As a consequence the Canadians are able to more or less monopolize the fishing, which they say they will do, until the American government lowers the duty on fish sufficiently to allow them to bring their catches to American ports and sell at a profit.

During the past number of years, Canadian patrol boats have captured a number of American fishing schooners sailing for bait in Canadian waters and the seizure and confiscation of these vessels has resulted in more or less friction between the government.
